RE: Utah v. Vijil, No. 20111

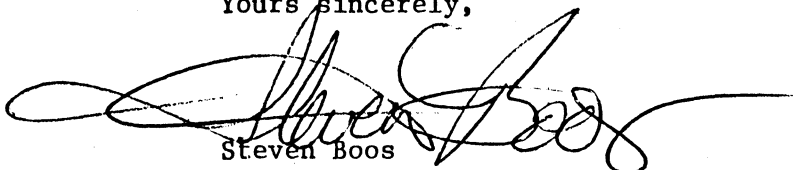

Dear Mr. Butler:

Pursuant to Rule 24(j) Utah Rules of Appellate Procedure, the appellant, Daniel Vijil wishes to advise the Court of supplemental authority which is pertinent to this action.

The appellant advised the Court, by a letter dated June 25, 1985 (photocopy attached), of a decision by the New Mexico Supreme Court, State of New Mexico ex rel. Department of Human Services v. Jojola (1983), 99 N.M. 500, 660 P.2d 590, which is addressed to the issue of state subject matter jurisdiction in a reservation based paternity and support action. The appellant has now learned that this decision was brought upon on appeal before the U.S. Supreme Court (No. 82-2049). The Motion To Dismiss (photocopy attached) filed by the State of New Mexico indicates that the appeal had become moot due to the amendment of state regulations which now defer to tribal jurisdiction. Whatever weight is accorded the Jojola decision should be determined in reference to these amendments.

Thank you.

Yours sincerely,

Steven Boos

MOTION TO DISMISS APPEAL

The appellee State of New Mexico, ex rel. Human Services Department (hereinafter Department) respectfully moves the Court under Rule 16 to dismiss this appeal because there is no basis for jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. §1257(2), and because events subsequent to the New Mexico Supreme Court decision have rendered this case moot. In addition the nonjurisdictional questions appellant Jimmy Jojola (hereinafter Jojola) seeks to raise are premature.¹

Because of subsequent events the questions which Jojola seeks to present do not accurately state the questions before this Court. The questions now presented by this appeal are:

- (1) Whether actions and events subsequent to the New Mexico Supreme Court decision have rendered moot the question of which forum should determine paternity and set a level of child support.
- (2) Whether the question of who must reimburse the Human Services Department for expenditures on behalf of the dependent minor child or in which court suit

¹ In January of 1983, a new administration took office in New Mexico and began instituting substantial policy changes in the state's relationship to Indian Tribes in New Mexico. These changes necessarily occurred after the appeal to the New Mexico Supreme Court was briefed and argued in 1982. An analysis of the state's position on domestic relations matters involving Indians was begun following the state Supreme Court's decision. The determination was made to defer to Tribal sovereignty in matters such as those presented by this appeal. The actions of the Department in developing new manual policy followed promptly. It was decided that Mr. Jojola be given the benefit of the new policy while the manual revision must be brought is ripe for review prior to a determination of paternity, and if so, whether that question should be addressed by this Court prior to its being addressed by the New Mexico Supreme Court.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

following additional facts should be added to those stated in appellant's Jurisdictional Statement:²

On July 1, 1983, the Department issued a new formal policy governing the procedure to be followed in all cases seeking to establish paternity and set levels of child support where the child, mother and putative father are all Indians residing on the reservation. The new policy recognizes the right of the Indian people on a reservation to make their own determination of paternity and to set levels of child support. It further states the Department's policy will be to assist the mother of the dependent child in tribal court to establish paternity. See Appendix A.³

responsibility to pursue paternity and child support obligations is vested to the state by Subchapter IV-D of the Social Security Act, 42 U.S.C. § 651, et seq. (Aug. 14, 1935, c.531, Title IV, § 451, as added Jan. 4, 1937, Pub.L. 93-647, § 101(a), 88 Stat. 2351, and amended Aug. 13, 1938, Pub.L. 97-35, Title XXIII, § 2332(a), 95 Stat. 861). The state has vested the Department to fulfill these responsibilities by Section 7-7 and 27-2-28, N.M.S.A. 1978. These sections are set forth in full in Appendix E.

additional actions by the Department changing procedures and obtaining dismissal of the original action in state court are likely to be considered by this Court. Fusari v. Steinberg, 419 U.S.

2. On or about June 13, 1983, Dyana Abeita, the mother of the dependent minor child, filed a paternity and child support action on behalf of the child in Isleta Tribal Court. The Department's attorney represents her in this action. See Appendix B.
3. The Department filed a motion to dismiss its petition in the District Court of the State of New Mexico on June 13, 1983, on the grounds that the paternity issue would be pursued in the Tribal Court of Isleta. See Appendix C. On June 29, 1983, this motion was granted over the objection of Jojola, and the petition to determine paternity and set child support was dismissed without prejudice. See Appendix D.

ARGUMENT

I.

THIS CASE IS MOOT BECAUSE THE DEPARTMENT HAS ISSUED A FORMAL POLICY REQUIRING THAT PATERNITY PETITIONS SUCH AS THE ONE IN THIS CASE BE FILED IN TRIBAL COURT.

The Department has issued a formal policy statement which details the procedures to be followed in all cases similar to the one presented by this appeal.⁴ The policy statement

⁴ The policy statement has been codified as Section 529, Case Application and Referral Procedures of the Department's Program Manual, Income Support Division, Volume III, Child Support Enforcement Program, and is reproduced in full and attached as Appendix A. The policy statement is repeated verbatim as Section 548 (Case Processing—Establishment of a Support Obligation), Section 559.1 (Case Processing—Establishment of Paternity), Section 569.2 (Case Processing—Enforcement), and Section 574 (Case Processing—Intervenorship Cases).

s that in all such cases, in which the mother, putative father, and child are Indians who reside on the reservation, a paternity petition shall be filed in the Tribal Court of competent jurisdiction. This type of formal policy statement is a part of the organic law of the State of New Mexico.⁵ The Department is bound by the manual provision, which is treated by the courts as the law of the state. See Hillman v. Health and Social Services Department, 92 N.M. 480, 590 P.2d 1001 (N.M. App. 1979).

Formal changes of a Department's policy go far beyond the cessation of challenged activity by the defendants in United States v. W.T. Grant Co., 345 U.S. 629, 632 (1953), where the Court was concerned that the defendants could not return to their old ways. For the state to return to its old ways would require the same elaborate policy and manifestations as have just transpired in instituting the changes set forth in footnote 4, supra. Formal policy statements are legal controls which the agency imposes on its own operation and exercise of power. Federal courts have recognized similar statements by federal agencies have the force of law. See Pickus v. United States Board of Parole, 507 F.2d 1107, 1110 (D.C. Cir. 1974), or create binding law, as the court held in Gibson Wine Co. v. Snyder, 90 U.S. App. D.C. 135, 136, 222 F.2d 329 (1952). This type of change in law, applicable to the case at bar and to all future cases, obviates the need for an Article III court to resolve the issues raised by the prior controversy.

The promulgation of this policy renders this case moot because it no longer presents a justiciable case or controversy.

⁵ Manual revisions are filed with the Records Center pursuant to the Records Act, Section 14-3-1, et seq., N.M.S.A. 1978, and State

The Department has substantially adopted the position urged by Jojola, and the parties are in agreement on the issue presented for adjudication. A ruling from the Supreme Court of the United States now could not give Jojola any relief that he does not already have from the state. Consequently a decision by this Court would be merely advisory. As the Court has repeatedly noted, the Constitution of the United States limits the federal courts to adjudication of cases and controversies and bars advisory opinions. U.S. CONST. art. III, §2; Liner v. Jafco, Inc., 375 U.S. 301, 306, n.3 (1964).

The facts presented by this appeal are clearly encompassed by the new policy statement's provisions. Pursuant to the established policy, the Department is pursuing its remedies in Tribal Court where the parties are all Indians residing within the reservation. Mr. Jojola, Ms. Abeita and her son, Jonathan Abeita, are all enrolled members of the Isleta Tribe and reside on the Isleta reservation. Jurisdictional Statement, p. 14.

At the time the notice of appeal was filed in this case, a live controversy affecting the rights of Jojola existed. Since that time, however, the Department codified its policy decision to defer to Indian Tribal sovereignty in paternity determinations such as presented here. The controversy that was present when the case was initiated no longer exists and because the controversy must continue at the appellate or certiorari review stage, this case is now moot. Roe v. Wade, 410 U.S. 113, 125 (1973).

Where changes have occurred such as here, this Court must review the decision below in light of the law "as it now stands, not as it stood when the judgment below was entered." Diffenderfer v. Central Baptist Church, 404 U.S. 412, 414 (1972); Hall v. Beals, 396 U.S. 45, 48 (1969). The promulgation of a formal manual revision by the Department extends the ction of the policy not only to Jojola but to all similarly ted persons.

II

THE DEPARTMENT HAS SOUGHT AND OBTAINED A DISMISSAL OF THIS ACTION IN STATE DISTRICT COURT THEREBY MAKING THIS APPEAL MOOT.

On June 13, 1983, the Department filed a Motion to Dismiss this case in the District Court of New Mexico. This motion was granted on June 29, 1983. The Motion and the Order granting it are attached as Appendices C and D, respectively. The cause was remanded to that court on March 31, 1983, by the New Mexico Supreme Court. In conformance with the new policy, the Department will no longer pursue this case in the state's courts.

The legality of the forum initially chosen by the Department is the basis of the lawsuit on appeal. The withdrawal or voluntary dismissal of the legal action which is the basis of the appeal renders the appeal moot. Williams v. Simons, 355 U.S.
131 (1957). There is no viable case or controversy of the kind necessary "to avoid advisory opinions on abstract propositions of law." Hall v. Beals, 396 U.S. 45, 48 (1969). All the parties to this action are in agreement that this case should not be litigated in state court and further that appropriate jurisdiction for determinations of paternity lies in the Tribal Court. The dismissal by the state court leaves extant only the paternity question of the mother in Tribal Court, and no justiciable controversy remains before this Court.

III.

ANY DETERMINATION OF RESPONSIBILITY FOR REIMBURSEMENT FOR PAST CHILD SUPPORT IS PREMATURE AND NOT RIPE FOR DECISION.

A noncustodial parent is liable to the Department in the amount of the public assistance paid to persons to whom that parent owes a duty of support. Section 27-2-28, N.M.S.A.
1978. No action can lie for such repayments, however, until a determination of paternity is made. Neither the state district court nor the New Mexico Supreme Court has addressed the merits of this case; therefore, no determination has been made of the paternity of Jonathan Abeita. Until such time as the paternity of the dependent child is determined, any attempt to collect for sums expended by the Department and the federal government on the child's behalf would be premature.
Any action against Jojola in any court to collect under the repayment statute would not be ripe for decision at this time.
This Court should decline to decide this matter because it is not yet ripe for review.

The "basic rationale [of the ripeness doctrine] is to prevent the courts, through avoidance of premature adjudication, from entangling themselves in abstract disagreements over administrative policies, and also to protect the agencies from judicial interference until an administrative decision has been formalized and its effects felt in a concrete way by the challenging parties." Abbott Laboratories v. Gardner, 387 U.S. 136 (1967).
Whether Jojola owes any obligation to repay the sums expended under the Public Assistance Act (§§27-2-1, et seq., N.M.S.A. 1978) is premature absent an adjudication that he is a "noncustodial parent [who] owes a duty of support."
§27-2-28(A), N.M.S.A. 1978. A decision anticipating the Deis that the Isleta Tribal Court will determine that Jojola is the dependent child's natural father. Until this issue is lived by the Tribal Court, the Department cannot know t action it will take.⁶

he New Mexico Supreme Court did not address this .er in its opinion and thereby implicitly recognized that question was premature. Moreover, because the New Mex- Supreme Court did not make any decision concerning arsement actions, this Court should not assume juris- on to decide such a question.

IV

JOJOLA CANNOT INVOKE 28 U.S.C. §1257(2)
WHERE THE NEW MEXICO SUPREME COURT HAS NOT RULED ON THE VALIDITY OF ANY NEW MEXICO STATUTE.

jojola contends that he comes within the appeals provisions 8 U.S.C. §1257 (2), by claiming that assumption of juris- on by the New Mexico courts would be repugnant to the titution, treaties or laws of the United States. However, New Mexico Supreme Court in deciding this case did not .u the question of the validity of any New Mexico statutes has Jojola raised any such issue in his jurisdictional state- t. Until the New Mexico Supreme Court analyzes and on the relevant statutes and treaties as applied to the cular facts of an individual case or controversy, and rules the federal statutes or treaties are invalid, or that New suant to Section 529, et al., of the Child Support Enforcement Pro- Manual, any action to collect past Aid to Families with Dependent ren (AFDC) support must be approved by the Chief of the Child Mexico statutes are valid which are allegedly repugnant to the Constitution, treaties or federal statutes, this Court has no justiciable case before it. Flournoy v. Wiener, 321 U.S. 253 (1944). See Baltimore & Potomac R. Co. v. Hopkins, 130 U.S. 210 (1889).

CONCLUSION

Wherefore, Appellee Department respectfully submits that the questions upon which this cause depends are moot, premature and so insubstantial as not to need further argument, and Appellee Department respectfully moves the Court to dismiss this appeal.

N.M. Human Services Dept. Program Manual, Income Support Division, Vol. III

529 Deference to Indian Tribal Sovereignty

The Human Services Department recognizes the right of Indian people residing on the reservation to resolve fundamental issues in the area of domestic relations within the framework of established principles of Indian Tribal sovereignty. As a result, and notwithstanding the holding of the New Mexico Supreme Court in State of New Mexico ex rel. Human Services Department v. Jojola, ___NM___, 660 P.2d 590 (1983), CSEB will not seek to establish the paternity in State Court of putative Indian fathers who are amenable to suit in Tribal Court where the mother, putative father, and child reside within the exterior boundaries of the reservation. In all such cases, a paternity petition shall be brought in the name of the natural mother, individually and as the natural guardian of the child, in the Tribal Court of competent jurisdiction. If the putative father is not amenable to suit in the Tribal Court or the Tribal Court will not exercise personal or subject matter jurisdiction, a paternity action may be brought in State court only upon the prior written approval of the Chief of the Child Support Enforcement Bureau and the General Counsel of the Department.

No action to enforce an AFDC support obligation may be brought against an absent Indian parent who resides on the reservation without the prior written approval of the Chief of the Child Support Enforcement Bureau and the General Counsel of the Department. No action to enforce a non-AFDC support obligation may be brought in State Court against an absent Indian parent who resides on the reservation without the prior

1. establish the paternity of a child in the case of the child born out of wedlock with respect to whom an assignment of support rights has been executed in favor of the department;

2. establish an order of support for children receiving aid to families with dependent children and, at the option of the department, for the spouse or former spouse with whom such children are living but only if a support obligation has been established with respect to such spouse or former spouse, for whom no order of support presently exists and seek modification, based upon the noncustodial parent's ability to pay, of existing orders in which the support order is inadequate to properly care for the child and the spouse or former spouse with whom the child is living;

3. enforce as the real party in interest any existing order for the support of children who are receiving aid to families with dependent children or of the spouse or former spouse with whom such children are living; and

D. represent nonaid families with dependent children in the establishment and enforcement of paternity and child support obligations, including locating the absent parent, for which it shall charge the applicant a start-up fee of twenty dollars and a fee of ten dollars for the services performed which costs shall be recovered from support paid. If the costs exceed the amount of one month's support obligation, then the monthly collection shall be limited to ten percent of the collection. Where the service rendered is solely for the collection of past-due support, the department shall levy a fee not in excess of that provided by the federal act, against the delinquent parent[,], which fee shall be in addition to the amount of the delinquency and collectible as other judgments.
