STATEMENT OF JURISDICTION

This appeal is from a judgment and conviction for Cruelty to Animals, in violation of West Valley City Ordinance 23-5-104(8), a Class B Misdemeanor. This Court obtains jurisdiction pursuant to §78-2a-3(d) Utah Code Annotated (1992 as amended).

NATURE OF PROCEEDINGS

This is an appeal of right from final judgment of conviction for the offense of cruelty to animals entered in the Third Judicial Circuit Court in and for Salt Lake County, West Valley City Department, the Honorable William A. Thorne, Jr., presiding.

STATEMENT OF ISSUES PRESENTED

Standard of Review:

The issues presented for review pertain to whether the court erred in denying defendant's Motion to Dismiss and Motion for Reconsideration because RWVCO 23-5-104(8) is unconstitutional under numerous provisions of the Utah State and United States Constitutions. The standard of review for each of the issues on review is the clear error standard as to the findings of fact of the court and the correction of error standard as to the court's legal conclusions. State v. Steward, 806 P.2d 213, 215 (Ut.App.Ct. 1991). The trial court's conclusions of law are accorded no deference and are reviewed for correctness. Rimensburger v. Rimensburger, 190 U.A.R. 48 (Ut.App.Ct. 1992).

Issues on Review:

1. Is Revised West Valley City Ordinance 23-5-104(8)(a) unconstitutional pursuant to Article XI, Section 5 of the Utah State Constitution?

2. Is Revised West Valley City Ordinance 23-5-104(8)(a) unconstitutional pursuant to the Fourteenth Amendment of the United States Constitution and Article I, Section 7 of the Utah Constitution, as being vague and overbroad?

3. Is Revised West Valley City Ordinance 23-5-104(8)(a) preempted by Title 7, Section 2156(d) of the United States Code, and an unconstitutional interference with interstate commerce and of the right to travel?

4. Is Revised West Valley City Ordinance 23-5-104(8)(a) violative of Section 1, Article I of the Utah Constitution and therefore void?

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

This matter arose as the result of a DUI stop on May 27, 1990 (R-1. 37). Defendant was detained by West Valley City police authorities as he was returning from Arizona (R-1. 37) where defendant had engaged birds in fighting ventures where the sport of cockfighting is legal (R-1. 37). On May 30th, Dennis Streeter was charged with six counts of cruelty to animals, in violation of West Valley City Revised Ordinance 23-5-104, under Case No. 901001586 (R-1. 37).<sup>1</sup> The defendant was charged with raising, keeping or using poultry for the purpose of fighting. (Id.) The defendant was returning from having fought the birds in Arizona, where such fighting is legal. (Id.)

Subsequently, on May 31, 1992, the defendant was charged with one additional charge of cruelty to animals under a second information in Case No. 901001677MC (R-2. 1). In addition, the defendant was charged with the following violations under that same information:

(1) Doing business without a license in violation of West Valley City Ordinance 17-1-102; (Id.)

(2) Improper Uses for R-1-8 zone for operating a poultry business in violation of Revised West Valley City Ordinance 7-9-103; (Id.)

(3) Improper uses for R-1-8 zone for keeping poultry in non-zoned area in violation of Revised West Valley Ordinance 7-9-102; (Id.)

(4) Too many dogs in violation of West Valley City Ordinance 23-1-101; (Id.)

(5) Too many dogs in violation of West Valley City Ordinance 23-1-101; (Id.)

each case number, all references to the record shall be as follows: R-1 shall pertain to the record in Case No. 901001586 and all references to R-2 shall pertain to Case No. 901001677.

(6) Failure to Obtain Rabies Vaccination in violation of West Valley City Ordinance 23-4-102; (Id.)

(7) Accumulations of Solid Waste and Littering in Violation of West Valley City Ordinance 24-1-11; (Id.)

(8) Improper Height for Fences in violation of West Valley City Ordinance 7-2-119 (R-2.). (Id.)

The defendant filed a Motion to Dismiss the cruelty to animals charges brought under both Case Nos. 9010011677 and 901001586 (R-2. 55-61), which motion was denied by memorandum decision, dated January 27, 1992 (R-1. 37). Subsequently, defendant filed a Motion to Reconsider the court's denial of defendant's Motion to Dismiss and presented additional grounds for challenging the constitutionality of West Valley City Ordinance 23-5-104, the violation of which was the basis of the cruelty to animals charges filed against the defendant (R-1. 47). Argument pertaining to defendant's Motion for Reconsideration was presented to the court on March 30, 1992 (Tr. 1-17). Said motion together with counsel's request for time to brief the issues set forth therein was denied by the court on the record of the trial proceeding conducted March 30, 1992 (Tr. 13).

On March 30, 1992, the defendant waived his right to a trial on the merits and entered a conditional guilty plea to count one of the information filed in connection with Case No. 901001586, to wit, cruelty to animals, a violation of West Valley City Ordinance 23-5-104 (Tr. 10, 13, 19, 20). The remaining five charges of cruelty to animals set forth in the information were dismissed (R-1. 66, 67). The defendant also entered a conditional guilty plea to count four of the information filed in connection with Case No. 901001677, to wit, cruelty to animals, a violation of West Valley City Ordinance 23-5-104 (Tr. 11, 13, 19, 20). Defendant pled guilty to counts one, two and eight of the information, to wit, doing business without a license, improper use of R-1-8 zone for operating a poultry business in an improperly zoned area, and accumulation of solid waste and littering, respectively (R-2. 74, 75). All remaining charges filed in connection with Case No. 901001677 were dismissed (Tr. 11; R-2. 74, 75).

The defendant's reservation of right with regard to the conditional guilty pleas entered in both of the above-referenced cases, was put on the record at the sentencing proceeding and was incorporated into defendant's guilty plea affidavits (Tr. 10-15, 19, 20; R-1. 17-22, 49-54). On April 30, 1992, at the hour of 10:00 o'clock a.m., Judge William A. Thorne sentenced the defendant to sixty (60) days in jail and imposed a fine of $1,000.00 (Tr. 73; R-2. 75). Said sentence was suspended pursuant to defendant meeting certain terms and conditions of said sentence, including the absence of further violations within a one year period, compliance with the terms of probation, and compliance wit zoning ordinances (Tr. 73; R-2. 75). The defendant filed a Notice of Appeal May 29, 1992, in both Case No. 901001586 and Case No. 901001677 (R-1. 68, R-2. 76). The cases were consolidated by the Utah Court of Appeals under Case No. 920349-CA on June 23, 1992.

STATEMENT OF THE FACTS

The appellant is a resident of West Valley City, residing at 3351 South 7200 West (R-2. 1). Appellant has operated a poultry business at said residence, raising game fowl which he utilizes for fighting outside of West Valley City and the State of Utah, including Arizona, where cockfighting is legal (R-1. 37; Tr. 21, ln.13; Tr. 20, ln.17). Appellant was charged with cruelty to animals, inter alia, when he was stopped by West Valley Police officers on May 29, 1992 in connection with a DUI stop (R-1. 37). Defendant was en route to West Valley City from Arizona, where he had engaged fowl in the activity of cockfighting. (Id.)

SUMMARY OF ARGUMENTS

Revised West Valley City Ordinance 23-5-104(8)(a) is unconstitutional pursuant to Article XI, Section 5 of the Utah Constitution as it exceeds the regulatory and lawmaking authority endowed West Valley City by the State of Utah and is in conflict with general law. The police powers conferred upon West Valley City by the general welfare clause empower West Valley City to enact only those laws which are reasonably and substantially related to improving the health, safety and morals of the West Valley City citizenry. The ordinance at issue is not substantially or reasonably related to the protection of the general welfare of West Valley City inhabitants. Accordingly, Revised West Valley City Ordinance 23-5-104(8)(a) is an improper and unconstitutional exercise of the police powers statutorily conferred upon West Valley City and cannot be upheld.

Revised West Valley City Ordinance violates both the Utah and United States Constitutions as it is unconstitutionally vague and overbroad. The ordinance is void for vagueness as it fails to clearly define or set forth explicit standards such that a person of ordinary intelligence may have an opportunity to know what is prohibited by the ordinance. The ordinance is also void for overbreadth as it sweeps within its ambit legitimate activities occurring outside the boundaries of West Valley City or the State of Utah, and constitutes an extraterritorial criminal statute in violation of the Fourteenth Amendment of the United States Constitution as well as Article I, Section 7, and Article I, Section 1 of the Utah State Constitution.

The Ordinance violates the right to travel implicit in the United States and Utah Constitutions and unlawfully interferes with interstate commerce. The Revised West Valley City Ordinance effectively precludes breeders and husbandmen such as appellant from transporting game fowl to be used for fighting in jurisdictions where the sport is legal. Moreover, the ordinance is preempted by federal law. The United States Congress enacted legislation specifically permitting the interstate shipment of game fowl for fighting ventures in States where such ventures are lawful. The ordinance directly conflicts with the objective of congress which chose to protect said activity and is therefore invalid under the supremacy clause.

Revised West Valley City Ordinance 23-5-104(8) unconstitutionally interferes with the right to own and possess property, in violation of Article I Section 1 of the Utah Constitution. Any restriction upon constitutionally protected property rights must be balanced against the alleged evil sought to be corrected and the limitation of constitutional rights imposed by the ordinance. In the instant case, the conduct proscribed has no effect whatsoever on the inhabitants of West Valley City because the fighting of fowl owned by Appellant occurs outside of the territorial limits of West Valley City. Therefore, the ordinance is unconstitutional pursuant to Article I, Section 1 of the Utah Constitution as it unjustifiably deprives defendant/appellant of constitutionally protected property rights.

ARGUMENT

THE COURT ERRED IN DENYING APPELLANTS MOTION TO DISMISS AND MOTION FOR RECONSIDERATION AS REVISED WEST VALLEY CITY ORDINANCE 23-5-104 VIOLATES THE UNITED STATES AND UTAH CONSTITUTIONS.

A. REVISED WEST VALLEY CITY ORDINANCE 23-5-104(8) IS IN CONFLICT WITH GENERAL LAW AND IS THEREFORE CONSTITUTIONALLY INVALID PURSUANT TO ARTICLE XI, SECTION 5 OF THE UTAH STATE CONSTITUTION.

The ordinance at issue herein is ostensibly adopted to promote the health, safety and morals of the inhabitants of West Valley City. Revised West Valley City Ordinance 23-5-104(8)(a) (hereinafter RWVCO 23-5-104(8)(a)) provides, in pertinent part:

CRUELTY TO ANIMALS PROHIBITED

Animals for fighting:

(a) It shall be unlawful for any person or corporation to raise, keep or use any animal, fowl or bird for the purpose of fighting or baiting;

The ordinance in question constitutes an improper exercise of the powers granted to West Valley City by the State of Utah and is constitutionally invalid as it conflicts with general law and is void as ultra vires.

As a chartered city, West Valley City is granted, inter alia, certain police powers by the State legislature to enact ordinances and regulations for the benefit of the municipality.<sup>2</sup> In addition to constitutionally conferred powers, enabling statutes such as the general welfare clause, provide municipal authority to enact ordinances, not repugnant to law, which are necessary to provide for the safety, health, morals and welfare of the city and its inhabitants.<sup>3</sup> The police powers of West Valley City are strictly limited to those expressly granted by state constitution or statute. Nance v. Mayflower Tavern, Inc., 150 P.2d 773 (1944); Salt Lake City v. Sutter, 216 P.234 (1923); 1 C Antieua, Municipal Corporation Law Section 5.01 (1967); 1 E McQuillin, Municipal Corporations Section 1.93 (3d Ed. 1949). A municipal ordinance which exceeds the authority conferred by statute is invalid as ultra vires and unconstitutional as in conflict with general law. See e.g., Ritholz v. City of Salt Lake, 284 P.2d 702 (1955); Gronlund v. Salt Lake City, 194 P.2d 464, 466 (1948); State v. Salt Lake City, 445 P.2d 691 (1968).

They may pass all ordinances and rules, and make all regulations, not repugnant to law, necessary for the carrying into effect or discharging all powers and duties conferred by this chapter, and as are necessary and proper to provide for the safety and preserve the health, and promote the prosperity, improve the morals, peace and good order, comfort and convenience of the city and its inhabitants, and for the protection of property in the city; and may enforce obedience to the ordinances with fines or penalties as they may deem proper, but the punishment of any offense shall be by fine not to exceed the maximum class B misdemeanor fine under Section 76-3-301 or by imprisonment not to exceed six months, or by both the fine and imprisonment.

While the police power conferred to West Valley City under the general welfare clause is broad in scope and its legitimate objects are broad and comprehensive, it is, nevertheless fundamental that the police power is limited to the promulgation and enforcement of measures reasonably related to a legitimate object for its exercise, including the public health, morals, comfort and safety of the municipalities inhabitants. McQuillin, Municipal Corporations, Section 24.09 (3rd Edition). Accordingly, the police power conferred upon West Valley City by the State of Utah is not an infinite and unlimited power. Id. See also, State v. Hutchison, 624 P.2d 1116, 1128 (Utah 1980) (Although the general welfare clause has been afforded liberal construction, it does not grant municipalities carte blanche nor limitless power to enact restrictive ordinances under the auspices of protecting the safety, health and welfare of its citizenry). Rather, only those ordinances which bear a substantial and reasonable relationship to the objects of protecting the general welfare may be upheld as a valid exercise of West Valley City's police power. State v. Hutchison, 624 P.2d 1116, 1126 (1980) (When the state has granted general welfare powers to local governments, those governments have independent authority to pass ordinances which are reasonably and appropriately related to the objectives of that power, i.e., providing for the public safety health, morals and welfare); Parker v. Provo City Corp., 543 P.2d 769 (1975) (Municipal ordinances enacted to protect public health, safety, welfare and well-being must bear reasonable relation to purposes).

The issue in the instant case is thus reduced to the question of whether the challenged ordinance is substantially and reasonably related to the promotion of the prosperity and improvement of the health, safety and morals of the inhabitants of West Valley City. The circumstances of this case compel a negative answer; there is neither a substantial nor reasonable relationship between the alleged evil to be prevented (to raise, keep or use fowl or birds for the purpose of fighting or baiting) and the protection of the safety, health and morals of the citizens of West Valley City.

In the instant case, the alleged evil sought to be corrected ostensibly has a demeaning and detrimental effect on the morals of the inhabitants of West Valley City. However, the detrimental effect could only occur if the activity to be prevented, the fighting of fowl or birds, occurred within the boundaries of West Valley City where the citizenry may witness or otherwise be directly or indirectly effected by the activity.<sup>4</sup> There is not a scintilla of evidence in this record on appeal that the fowl raised by Appellant is utilized for the purpose of fighting within West Valley City or within the State of Utah. To the contrary, the record reflects that Appellant utilizes the birds, raised and kept at his residence, for fighting in jurisdictions far distant from Utah, including Arizona (R-1. 37, (T. 20, ln. 15-18, 21, ln 11-14).

It is inconceivable that the fighting of fowl or birds outside the State of Utah could have any affect or impact, detrimental or otherwise, on the citizenry of West Valley City. The act of raising, keeping, or using fowl or birds for the purpose of fighting outside of the geographical boundaries of West Valley City has no tenable relationship whatsoever to the general welfare of West Valley City citizens. Similarly, the act of selling or transferring game fowl to third persons who may eventually utilize the birds for fighting in a foreign jurisdiction has no impact whatsoever on the morals of West Valley City inhabitants.<sup>5</sup> Accordingly, the proscribed activity

<sup>4</sup>Presumably, if the activity does not occur within a locality where citizens may witness or otherwise be effected by the activity there is no direct or indirect impact upon the morals of the members of the community.

<sup>5</sup>The act of raising does not require the birds to be fought. To the contrary, the raising of specific fighting breeds of birds require the birds be kept separate in order to prevent injury as the birds will fight instinctively if kept together. J.W. Cooper, M.D., Game Fowls, Their Origin and History, p. 35 (standard edition) (1869).

does not so effect the morals and welfare as to justify the interdiction imposed by RWVCO 23-5-104(8). Any other finding would be unconstitutional as the challenged ordinance would be given extraterritorial effect, in violation of the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution.<sup>6</sup> Moreover, a finding of validity would be inconsistent with state precedent. The Utah Supreme Court has struck down as ultra vires numerous ordinances enacted under the general welfare clause which proscribed conduct not immediately related to the protection of public welfare, including ordinances that sought to prohibit keeping pin ball machines,<sup>7</sup> playing pool,<sup>8</sup> advertising prescription eyeglasses,<sup>9</sup> fixing barbershops' closing hours,<sup>10</sup>

<sup>6</sup> It is axiomatic that West Valley City has no authority to legislate beyond the boundaries of the municipality. American Banana Co. v. United Fruit Co., 213 U.S. 347 (1909) (A Statute must be limited in its operation and effect to the territorial limits over which the lawmaker has general and legitimate power. Id. at 357. All legislation is prima facie territorial.) Id. RWVCO 23-5-104(8) clearly constitutes an extraterritorial criminal statute as it allows criminal prosecution of an individual who may "raise, keep or use fowl or birds for the purpose of fighting" without requiring proof that the owner intends to engage in animal fighting within the geographic boundaries of West Valley City, or even within the State of Utah.

Based on the foregoing, it is clear that the ordinance at issue does not satisfy the test of validity required by law as there is no substantial or reasonable relationship between the conduct proscribed thereunder and the protection of the general welfare of the citizens of West Valley City. There is no evidence in this record on appeal that the fowl raised by Appellant is fought in West Valley City. Accordingly, there is no tenable relationship whatsoever between the alleged evil to be prevented and the moral well being of the community. Therefore, the challenged ordinance is an improper and unconstitutional exercise of Appellee's state endowed police powers and is invalid as ultra vires and as in conflict with general law.

B. WEST VALLEY CITY ORDINANCE §23-5-104(8)(a) IS UNCONSTITUTIONAL, BEING VOID FOR BOTH VAGUENESS AND OVERBREADTH.

Appellant submits that RWVCO §23-5-104(8)(a), which provides that "[i]t shall be unlawful for any person or corporation to raise, keep or use any animal, fowl or bird for the purpose of fighting or baiting;" regardless of whether such "fowl or bird" engages in fighting or baiting within the boundaries of West Valley City, is unconstitutional as being void for vagueness and overbreadth, in violation of Article I, Section 7 and Article I,

Section 1 of the Constitution of the State of Utah, and the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

I. VAGUENESS

The due process clause of the Fourth and Fourteenth Amendments to the United States Constitution require that a criminal statute be declared void when it is so vague that "men of common intelligence must necessarily guess at its meaning and differ as to its application." Connally v. General Constr. Co., 269 U.S. 385, 391 (1926); see also Roberts v. United States Jaycees, 468 U.S. 609, 629 (1984); Colautti v. Franklin, 439 U.S. 379 (1979).

The Supreme Court has explained the relationship between due process and vagueness as follows:

It is a basic principle of due process that an enactment is void for vagueness if its prohibitions are not clearly defined. Vague laws offend several important values. First, because we assume that man is free to steer between lawful and unlawful conduct, we insist that laws give the person of ordinary intelligence a reasonable opportunity to know what is prohibited, so that he may act accordingly. Vague laws may trap the innocent by not providing fair warning.<sup>12</sup> Second, if arbitrary and discriminatory enforcement is to be prevented, laws must provide explicit standards for those who apply them. A vague law impermissibly delegates basic policy matters to policemen, judges, and juries for resolution on an ad hoc and subjective basis, with the attendant dangers of arbitrary and discriminatory application. Third, but related, where a vague statute "abuts upon sensitive areas of basic First Amendment freedoms," it "operates to inhibit the exercise of those freedoms." Uncertain meanings inevitably lead citizens to "'steer far wider of the unlawful zone' . . . than if the boundaries of the forbidden areas were clearly marked."

<sup>12</sup>A statute which is uncertain as to persons who may fall within its scope will also be found unconstitutionally vague. See Lanzetta v. New Jersey, 306 U.S. 451 (1939).

Grayned v. City of Rockford, 408 U.S. 104, 108-09 (1972) (citations omitted). See also Kolender v. Lawson, 461 U.S. 352, 257-58 (1983) (citations omitted) ("where the legislature fails to provide . . . minimal guidelines [to govern law enforcement], a criminal statute may permit 'a standardless sweep that allows policemen, prosecutors, and juries to pursue their personal predilections'." )<sup>13</sup>; Dae Woo Kim v. City of New York, 774 F.Supp. 164, 169 (S.D.N.Y. 1991) (citations omitted) (a statute is unconstitutionally vague if it "lacks clear definition or explicit standards such that it does not give a person of ordinary intelligence an opportunity to know what is prohibited").

The Utah Supreme Court has articulated a similar test for vagueness. In State v. Blowers, 717 P.2d 1321 (1986), the Utah Supreme Court struck down a conviction applying a driving while intoxicated ordinance to the rider of a horse, stating that "[a] criminal statute 'must be sufficiently clear and definite to inform persons of ordinary intelligence what their conduct must be to conform to its requirements and to advise one accused of violating it what constitutes the offense with which he is charged'." Id. at 1322, citing Greaves v. State, 528 P.2d 805, 807 (Utah 1974) (citations omitted). The court held the attempt by the State to apply the Utah Motor Vehicle Code to persons riding animals on a municipal roadway was too vague to survive constitutional due process challenge.

<sup>13</sup>The three standards set forth by the court are independent of each other. Thus, a statute may offend due process simply by violating one of the three standards. See generally LaFave and Scott, Substantive Criminal Law, Section 2.3, at 128-32 (1986). See also NAACP v. Burton, 371 U.S. 415 (1963).

Thus, the preliminary question to be determined by this Court is whether RWVCO §23-5-104(8) (a) gives a person of ordinary intelligence "a reasonable opportunity to know what is prohibited, so that he may act accordingly." Grayned. It is clear that a person of ordinary intelligence likely may not understand what it is to "raise, keep or use any animal, fowl or bird for the purpose of fighting or baiting," since the ordinance fails to state the territorial boundaries of the proscribed conduct. Consequently, it would be almost impossible that such a person can reasonably conduct himself or herself to conform to such a law.

Relying on the principle enunciated in Grayned, the Kansas Supreme Court recently struck down a Wichita erotic dancing ordinance. In City of Wichita v. Wallace, 788 P.2d 270 (Kan. 1990), the court found the Wichita ordinance unconstitutionally vague for a number of reasons, including failure to adequately define the proscribed conduct, overbreadth, and failure to require a scienter or intent requirement. Id. Appellant submits that the West Valley City Ordinance contains numerous deficiencies similar to those found in the Wichita ordinance.

Subsection (8)(a), under which Appellant was convicted, lacks a scienter or intent requirement, thereby rendering the ordinance void for vagueness. See Morissette v. United States, 324 U.S. 246, 250 (1952) (fundamental principle of American criminal jurisprudence is "that an injury can amount to a crime only when inflicted by intention."). For example, under §23-5-104(8)(a), virtually anyone who owns fowl or birds for the purpose of raising to sell for participation in animal fighting ventures in a jurisdiction in which fighting or baiting is legal, is subject to criminal prosecution, based upon their mere ownership of the gamefowl. The ordinance does not require that an individual be charged with fighting such animals, fowl or birds in the State of Utah; it does not distinguish between ownership" for the purpose of fighting or baiting" in states where the sport is legal and states where it is not; it does not distinguish between breeding and selling such birds for "fighting or baiting" to breeders in states where the sport of gamefighting is legal and states where it is not. Rather, the statute sweeps with a broad brush and encompasses ownership of any bird which is kept or raised for "fighting or baiting" even though that activity is perfectly legal in certain states, and has been so for a hundred years. (R-2. 57) Therefore, a person who unknowingly possesses fowl or birds which could be used for "fighting or baiting," or which may be sold in a state where such "fighting or baiting" is legal, would be punished under RWVCO §23-5-104(8)(a). The Kansas Supreme Court found a similar ordinance lacking an intent requirement to be unconstitutionally vague. This Court should similarly declare RWVCO §23-5-104(8)(a) unconstitutionally vague for violating the basic criminal rule that no crime is committed unless the suspect acted with a criminal intent.

II. OVERBREADTH

In addition to being unconstitutionally vague, Appellant asserts that RWVCO §23-5-104(8)(a) is unconstitutionally overbroad, because a person of ordinary intelligence cannot discern what is actually being prohibited by the ordinance and because it includes within its prohibitions legitimate and lawful conduct. The void-for-vagueness doctrine and the doctrine of overbreadth are related but distinct. A vague law or ordinance "denies due process by imposing standards of conduct so indeterminate that it is impossible to ascertain just what will result in sanctions; in contrast, a law that is overbroad may be perfectly clear but impermissibly purport to penalize protected

. . . activity." Hastings v. Judicial Conference of U.S., 485 U.S. 1014, 829 F.2d 91, 105 (D.C.Cir. 1987); see also Dae Woo Kim v. City of New York, 774 F.Supp. 164, 170 (S.D.N.Y. 1991) (quoting Grayned v. City of Rockford, 408 U.S. at 114) (a statute is "unconstitutionally overbroad if it includes within its prohibitions constitutionally protected conduct").

In Logan City v. Huber, 786 P.2d 1372 (1990), the Utah Court of Appeals struck down a city ordinance, stating that "[a]n overbroad enactment is one 'which does not aim specifically at evils within the allowable area of state control but, on the contrary, sweeps within its ambit other activities that in ordinary circumstances constitute an exercise of [constitutionally guaranteed] freedom[s]'." Id. at 1375, quoting Waters v. McGuriman, 656 F.Supp. 923, 925 (E.D.Pa. 1987). The court struck down the Logan City ordinance, which proscribed obscene or abusive language spoken with the intent "to cause public inconvenience, annoyance, or alarm, or recklessly creating a risk thereof," as being unconstitutionally overbroad, because the ordinance "punishes as disorderly conduct a significant amount of protected verbal expression, including criticism and challenge, vulgarities and remonstrations, whether it is directed at a police officer, an ordinary citizen, or one who is not even present, without regard for its likely impact . . . ." Id. at 1376.

In the instant case, RWVCO §23-5-104(8)(a) is overbroad in numerous respects. The ordinance provides that an individual commits a crime if he: "raise[s], keep[s] or use[s] any animal, fowl or bird for the purpose of fighting or baiting . . . ." The problem with this sweeping language is that it prohibits conduct, such as the simple possession of the game birds in West Valley City, which may be utilized for legal and legitimate activities in foreign jurisdictions.

Section 23-5-104(8)(a) is overbroad because it rests on "confusing and ambiguous criteria" which are subject to varying interpretations by those who enforce and are effected by the statute. Colautti, supra; Kolender, supra. There is little question that men of common intelligence must necessarily guess as to its meaning and differ as to its application. Greenwood v. City of North Salt Lake, 817 P.2d 816 (Utah 1991). It is unclear if the ordinance simply proscribes ownership of birds which are actively being used for "fighting and baiting" in the State of Utah, or prohibits the possession of gamefowl in the State of Utah, where the owner occasionally drives to Arizona and uses the bird for "fighting or baiting" where the sport is legal. One cannot reasonably determine whether it prohibits breeding and raising gamefowl in the State of Utah - without fighting such gamefowl - and selling the hatchlings to members of Gamefowl Breeders Associations in Arizona, where they will legally be used for "fighting or baiting" by members of those organizations. Therefore, RWVCO §23-5-104(8)(a) is both vague and overbroad, because it does not allow an individual of common intelligence to know whether he or she has committed a crime, and it sweeps within its ambit activities which are perfectly legitimate.

In addition, the ordinance invites unequal and arbitrary enforcement (Kolender, supra; Colautti, supra.) because West Valley City Ordinance §2-102-8<sup>14</sup> allows the "Animal Control Director or any person employed by the Department of Animal Control as an Animal Control Officer" ad hoc judgment as to which birds are being owned and raised for "fighting and baiting" -- without requiring proof that the bird has actually been used for animal fighting in the State of Utah -- an enormous amount of subjective judgment is interjected into the statute.<sup>15</sup> The ordinance is therefore unconstitutionally overbroad as it creates

<sup>14</sup>West Valley City Ordinance §23-1-102(2), which is not at issue in the instant case, delineates the "Powers of Animal Control Officers," and vests authority in the "Animal Control Director or any person employed by the Department of Animal Control as an Animal Control Officer" to have the authority and power to "apprehend and take with them and impound any animal found in violation of this ordinance."

<sup>15</sup>If fighting paraphernalia is discovered in proximity of a bird, this ordinance seems to allow the inference that the owner possesses the bird for "fighting or baiting" and justify that the owner become the subject of a criminal prosecution, even though the use of such paraphernalia is equally common to gamefowl raised for show purposes, and never fought. (T. 17).

a "standardless sweep [that] allows policemen, prosecutors, and juries to pursue their personal predilections." Kolender, supra, 461 U.S. at 358.

Finally, RWVCO, which allows criminal prosecution where an individual keeps, raises or uses a fowl or bird for the purpose of fighting or baiting without requiring proof that the owner intends to engage in animal fighting within West Valley City, or even in the State of Utah, is overbroad as it amounts to an extraterritorial criminal statute, in violation of the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution. RWVCO is limited in its operation and effect to the territorial limits over which the West Valley City Council has general and legitimate power. American Banana Co. v. United Fruit Co., 213 U.S. 347, (1909). All legislation is prima facie territorial. Id. at 357. Accordingly, West Valley City simply cannot sweep within the proscribed conduct of the ordinance legitimate activities occurring in foreign jurisdictions far beyond its territorial boundaries.

Accordingly, the ordinance is unconstitutionally overbroad as it fails to specifically aim at evils within the allowable area of state control and sweeps with its ambit legitimate activities which constitute an exercise of constitutionally protected freedoms. Logan City v. Huber, 786 P.2d 1372, 1375 (1990).

Based upon the foregoing, this court should find RWVCO 23-5-104(8) unconstitutional as being void for vagueness, in addition to being overbroad.

C. RWVCO UNCONSTITUTIONALLY INTERFERES WITH INTERSTATE COMMERCE AND TRAVEL AND IS FEDERALLY PREEMPTED BY 7 U.S.C. §2156(d).

RWVCO 23-5-104(8), which makes it a criminal offense to "raise, keep, or use" a fowl or bird for the purpose of fighting, violates the right to travel implicit in the United States and Utah Constitutions as well as interferes with interstate commerce.

The challenged ordinance does not limit itself to outlawing cockfighting within the boundaries of the State of Utah. Rather, the ordinance imposes a blanket prohibition upon the "keep[ing], rais[ing], or us[ing] any game fowl for the purpose of animal fighting" thus creating a criminal offense for the mere possession (i.e. keeping) of birds which one intends to transport to another State for use where cockfighting is legal.

Such an overreaching law impinges upon the fundamental right to travel embodied in the Fourteenth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution. See Shapiro v. Thompson, 394 U.S. 618 (1969). It also impinges upon the right to travel implicit in Article I, Section 1 of the Utah Constitution.

The Ordinance at issue impinges upon the rights to travel interstate, and the right to engage in interstate commerce, of citizens of all fifty states, by prohibiting individuals from travelling through West Valley City in possession of gamefowl which is intended to be used "for animal fighting," even if such fighting is to take place in a state where the sport is perfectly legal. Under the ordinance, if a citizen of Arizona, (where the sport is legal) travels through West Valley City on the way to a cockfight in Puerto Rico (where the sport is also legal), he or she is guilty of a criminal offense. Similarly, if a West Valley City resident raises birds for cockfighting, as appellant does, and ships them from the Salt Lake City Airport to Arizona (where the sport is legal), he or she is guilty of a criminal offense. The statute thus unconstitutionally impedes the flow of commerce interstate and violates the constitutional right of interstate travel both of residents of West Valley City and residents of all fifty States.

The egregious constitutional violation imposed by the ordinance, which essentially bans Appellant from raising fowl and from transporting fowl or traveling with fowl to cockfighting competitions in States where the sport is legal, is further evidenced by the fact that the United States Congress has preempted the area by permitting such activity.

In 1976, Congress enacted significant amendments to Title 7 U.S.C., Section 2156, entitled "Animal Fighting Venture Prohibition," which made it unlawful to: (a) sponsor or exhibit an animal fighting venture;<sup>16</sup> (b) Buy, sell, deliver or transport any animal in interstate commerce for participation in any animal fighting venture;<sup>17</sup> or (c) Use the mail services of the U.S. Postal Service to promote animal fighting.<sup>18</sup>

Significantly, Congress created a specific exemption for individuals who own birds and transport them to States where fighting ventures are legal. Subsection (d) of 7 U.S.C. §2156 provides:

Violation of State Law: Notwithstanding the provisions of subsections (a), (b) or (c) of this section, the activities prohibited by such subsections shall be unlawful with respect to fighting ventures involving live birds only if the fight is to take place in a State where it would be in violation of the laws thereof. Id. (emphasis added)

It shall be unlawful for any person to knowingly sponsor or exhibit an animal in any animal fighting venture to which any animal was moved in interstate or foreign commerce.

It shall be unlawful for any person to knowingly sell, buy, transport, or deliver to another person or receive from another person for purposes of transportation, in interstate or foreign commerce, any dog or other animal for purposes of having the dog or other animal participate in an animal fighting venture.

It shall be unlawful for any person to knowingly use the mail service of the United States Postal Service or any interstate instrumentality for purposes of promoting or in any other manner furthering an animal fighting venture except as performed outside the limits of the States of the United States.

Thus Congress has entered this area of regulation and has explicitly and/or implicitly created a right to travel interstate for the purpose of selling, breeding, or fighting live birds where the sport of cockfighting is legal. The federal statute thus serves to preempt State laws which would enter the sphere of regulation in which Congress has already acted, and prevents States from enacting laws which come in conflict with the federal scheme.

Congress has specifically provided for preemption in this area, as evidence by 7 U.S.C. 2156(h), which provides: the provisions of this chapter shall not supersede or otherwise invalidate any such State, local, or municipal legislation or ordinance relating to animal fighting ventures except in case of a direct and irreconcilable conflict between any requirements thereunder and this chapter or any rule, regulation, or standard hereunder. Id. (emphasis added).

Conflict with State Law

Since Gibbons v. Ogden, 9 Wheat. 1 (1824) the United States Supreme Court has emphasized that "acts of the State Legislatures. . . [which] interfere with, or are contrary to the laws of Congress, made in pursuance of the constitution," are invalid under the Supremacy Clause. Id. at 211. The keystone of federal preemption analysis is the determination of whether a challenged State statute "stands as an obstacle to the accomplishment and execution of the full purposes and objectives of Congress." Hines v. Davidowitz, 312 U.S. 52, 67 (1941); Perez v. Campbell, 401 U.S. 637, 649 (1970).

In Rice v. Santa Fe Elevator Corp., 331 U.S. 218 (1946), the Court held that congressional intent to preempt state regulations could be evidenced "if the enactment of a state policy produces a result inconsistent with the objective of the federal statute." Id. at 230. Even "when congress has not completely displaced state regulations, federal law may nonetheless preempt state law to the extent that it actually conflicts with federal law." California Federal Savings & Loan Ass'n v. Guerra, 107 S.Ct. 683, 689 (1987). This is particularly true if compliance with both laws may be physically impossible or the state law may stand "as an obstacle to the accomplishment and execution of the full purposes and objectives of Congress." Id. (quoting Florida Lime & Avocado Growers v. Paul, 373 U.S. 132, 142-143 (1963)).

In the instant case, RWVCO 23-5-104(8) clearly produces a result inconsistent with the objective of the federal statute. Id. Congressional intent, apparent in the text of the act, was to permit the shipment of birds to States where cockfighting is lawful, despite the lawfulness of cockfighting in the State of origin. The West Valley City Ordinance makes it impossible for West Valley City breeders and husbandmen, such as Appellant, to ship birds from Utah to other States or countries, because, under the ordinance, any possession of the birds in West Valley City with intent that they be fought anywhere in the world is unlawful, even if that activity is legal in the State or country of destination. Thus, the West Valley City Ordinance makes criminal the very activity Congress specifically chose to exempt from prosecution under the federal law.

The U.S. Supreme Court has consistently struck down State laws where their "administration . . . would conflict with the operation of the federal plan." City of Burbank v. Lockheed Air Terminal, 411 U.S. 624, 539 (1972); Pennsylvania v. Nelson, 350 U.S. 497, 509 (1955); Garner v. Teamsters Union, 346 U.S. 485, 490-91 (1951). The West Valley City Ordinance creates an "irreconcilable conflict" with federal law, as embodied in 7 U.S.C. Section 2156, Rice v. Santa Fe Elevator Corp., supra. Indeed, the legislative history of the federal statute indicates that the interstate shipment of gamefowl for breeding purposes, and for fighting ventures in States where such ventures are lawful, is a protected activity under the statute. See, Pub.L. 94-279, 1976 U.S. Code Cong. and Adm. News., p.797.<sup>19</sup> Therefore, the challenged ordinance which prohibits Appellant from keeping <sup>19</sup> The intent of 7 U.S.C., 2156(d) is evidenced by the following conference substitute contained in the legislative history of the Animal Welfare Act: The Conference substitute adopts the House provision with an amendment which provides that the activities prohibited by subsections (a), (b), or (c) of new section 26 of the act shall be unlawful with respect to fighting ventures involving live birds only if the fight is to take place in a State where it would be in violation of the laws thereof.

or raising game fowl ultimately to be fought in places where such fighting is lawful, conflicts with federal law and is invalid under the supremacy clause.

D. WEST VALLEY CITY ORDINANCE §23-5-104(8)(a) IS VIOLATIVE OF SECTION 1 ARTICLE I OF THE UTAH CONSTITUTION AND THEREFORE VOID AS AN UNCONSTITUTIONAL RESTRICTION UPON THE RIGHT TO OWN AND POSSESS PROPERTY.

"All men have the inherent and inalienable right to ... possess and protect property."

Article I, Section 1, Constitution of Utah.

RWVCO 23-5-104(8) runs head long into this constitutional guarantee when it makes it unlawful to raise, keep, or use a fowl or bird for admittedly legal purposes, which have no effect upon the public interest or general welfare of the citizens of West Valley City.

The city did not contend below that the raising and keeping of fighting cocks, alone, would run afoul (no pun intended) of city ordinances. Rather it is the raising of birds for the purposes of fighting which is claimed to subject appellant to criminal sanctions.

The section does not apply to export of live birds to foreign countries nor to interstate shipment of live birds for breeding purposes. Game fowl publications would be unaffected except that advertising of fights involving live birds would be prohibited except in those instances where such fights are to be held in a State or territory where they are not unlawful.

In determining the propriety of such a proscription, any limitation imposed upon the constitutional right to own and possess property in light of Article I, Section 1 of Utah's Constitution "must take into consideration the balance between the alleged evil sought to be corrected and the limitation on constitutional rights the ordinance would impose." Ritholz v. City of Salt Lake, 284 P.2d 702, 705 (S.Ct. Utah 1955).

Ritholz dealt with a city ordinance which sought to prohibit advertising the price of prescription eyeglasses. In holding the ordinance unconstitutional, the court noted the lack of evidence "to show any relationship between advertising eyewear and public health." Id. at 704.

Similarly there has been no showing, nor can there be, that Appellant's subjective intent, to engage some of his fowl in legal sport outside of this state, creates some "evil" or "hazard to public health" against which Appellant's right to possess and raise game cocks must be balanced.

Just as the Ritholz court prevented the city from unduly restraining the advertising and business practices of persons who sought to advertise eyewear, the Utah Constitution does not allow West Valley City to interfere with Appellant's business or hobby of raising show and game cocks absent a nexus between that activity and some dilitarianous affect on public health, welfare or morals. See also, Pride Oil Co. v. Salt Lake County, 370 P.2d

355 (Utah 1962) (restrained as unconstitutional a statute relating to posting of gasoline prices.)

Appellant does not contend that his property rights are absolute - where some important public interest requires safeguarding of health, morals, safety or welfare - even the most basic property rights may be limited. The problem with the present ordinance however is that in its application to Appellant it punishes conduct which will take place if at all, outside of the City of West Valley. Therefore, it cannot seriously be questioned that the evil to be corrected has no tenable relationship whatsoever to protecting the public interest of the citizenry of West Valley City. Accordingly, the ordinance is unconstitutional as it unjustifiably infringes upon Appellant's constitutionally protected right to own, possess and use his property.

Appellant's property rights should not be made to yield to mere convenience and expediency. It is the function of this court to look beyond the first blush impression of the enactment to see whether there is a sound basis to justify the city in proscribing and prosecuting Appellant's act of raising poultry with the intent to use them in a legal fashion outside of the State. See, Backman v. Bateman, 263 P.2d 561, (S.Ct. Utah 1953). Accordingly, RWVCO 23-5-104(8) is unconstitutional pursuant to Article I, Section 1 of the Utah State Constitution as there is no justifiable basis thereunder for imposing limitations upon Appellant's constitutionally protected property rights.

CONCLUSION AND RELIEF SOUGHT

Based on the foregoing, RWVCO 23-5-104(8)(a) is unconstitutional and the court erred in denying defendant/appellant's Motion to Dismiss and Motion for Reconsideration. Accordingly, the Appellant's judgment and conviction of cruelty to animals, in violation of RWVCO 23-5-104(8)(a), heretofore entered by Judge William A. Thorne, Jr. in the Third Circuit Court in and for Salt Lake County, West Valley Department, State of Utah, should be overturned.

COMES NOW, DENNIS STREETER, the defendant in this case and hereby acknowledges and certifies the following:

I have entered a plea of guilty to the following crimes of (1) Doing Business without a License, violation of West Valley City Municipal Ordinance 17-1-102; (2) Improper Use For R-1-8 Zone, to wit: Operating a poultry business in an R-18 zone, violation of West Valley City Ordinance 7-9-103; and (3) Accumulation of Solid Waste & Littering, violation of West Valley City Municipal Ordinance 24-1-11.. I further enter a conditional guilty plea to the charge of Cruelty to Animals, a violation of West Valley City Ordinance 23-5-104, and enter said plea conditionally, specifically reserving the right to challenge the constitutionality of said ordinance on appeal.

I understand that the penalties provided for my plea of guilty to the above referenced violations are as follows:

17-1-102, 7-9-103, and 24-1-11 are class B Misdemeanors for which a maximum fine of $1,000.00 may be imposed and/or a maximum sentence of six months imprisonment for each offense. I further understand that the penalties provided for violation of West Valley City Municipal Ordinance 23-5-104, a class B Misdemeanor, to which I am entering a conditional plea, carries a maximum fine of $1,000.00 and/or maximum imprisonment of up to six months in jail. I have recieved a copy of the information against me. I have read it, and I understand the nature and the elements of the offenses for which I am entering a guilty plea and/or a conditional plea of guilty.

The elements of the crimes with which I am charged are as follows: A person commits cruelty to animals under WVC Ordinance 23-5-104 if he raises, keeps, or uses any animal, fowl or bird for the purpose of fighting or baiting; A person commits a crime under WVC Municipal Ordinance 17-1-102 if he operates a business without a license; A person commits a crime under WVC Municipal Ordinance 7-9-103 if he operates a poultry business in a zone designated as R-1-8; A person commits a crime under WVC Municipal Ordinance 24-1-11 if he permits solid waste and/or litter to accumulate on property where there exists no zoning authority to do so.

I am entering this plea voluntarily and with knowledge and understanding of the following facts:

1. I know that I have the right to be represented by an attorney and that if I cannot afford one, an attorney will be appointed by the court at no cost to me.

2. I have not waived my right to counsel. My attorney is Michelle J. Ivie and I have had an opportunity to discuss this statement, my rights and the consequences of my guilty plea with my attorney.

3. I know that I have a right to a trial by jury.

4. I know that if I wish to have a trial I have the right to confront and cross-examine witnesses against me or to have them cross-examined by my attorney. I also know that I have the right to compel my witness(es) by subpoena at state expense to testify in court upon my behalf.

5. I know that I have a right to testify in my own behalf but if I choose not to do so I cannot be compelled to testify or give evidence against myself and no adverse inferences will be drawn against me if I do not testify.

6. I know that if I wish to contest the charges against me I need only plead "not guilty" and the matter will be set for trial. At the trial the State of Utah will have the burden of proving each element of the charge beyond a reasonable doubt. If the trial is before a jury, the verdict must be unanimous.

7. I know that under the Constitution of Utah that if I were tried and convicted by a jury or by the judge that I would have the right to appeal my conviction and sentence to the Utah Court of Appeals or, where allowed, the Utah Supreme Court and that if I could not afford to pay the costs for such appeal, those costs would be paid by the state.

8. I know the maximum sentence that may be imposed for each offense to which I plead guilty. I know that by pleading guilty to an offense that carries a minimum mandatory sentence that I will be subjecting myself to serving a minimum mandatory sentence for that offense. I know that the sentences may be consecutive and may be for a prison term, fine, or both. I know that in addition to a fine a twenty-five percent (25%) surcharge, required by Utah Code Annotated §63-63a-4, will be imposed. I also know that I may be ordered by the court to make restitution to any victim(s) of my crimes.

9. I know that imprisonment may be for consecutive periods, or the fine for additional amounts, if my plea is to more than one charge. I also know that if I am on probation, parole, or awaiting sentencing on another offense of which I have been convicted or to which I have plead guilty, my plea in the present action may result in consecutive sentences being imposed upon me.

10. I know and understand that by pleading guilty, I am waiving my statutory and constitutional rights set out in the preceding paragraphs, with the exception of my conditional guilty plea pursuant to which I specifically reserve my constitutional right to appeal the validity of WVC Ordinance 23-5-104, I also know that by entering such plea, I am admitting and do so admit that I have committed the conduct alleged and I am guilty of the crimes for which my plea is entered.

11. My plea of guilty is the result of a plea bargain, to wit: the prosecutor has agreed to dismiss the remaining counts of the information against me. As further part of that plea bargain, the prosecutor has agreed to dismiss a case pending against me in the circuit court before Judge William A. Thorne. The prosecution and defendant have also agreed that the defendant may enter the plea set forth above while preserving the right to appeal the court's ruling on the constitutionality and validity of West Valley City Ordinance 23-5-104, and the defendant expressly reserves his right to appeal the court's denial of his motion to dismiss.

12. I know and understand that if I desire to withdraw my plea of guilty I must do so by filing a motion within thirty (30) days after entry of my plea, but that if I do not receive probation the State will stipulate to the withdrawal of this plea.

13. I know that any charge or sentencing concession or recommendation of probation or suspended sentence, including a reduction of the charges for sentencing made or sought by either defense counsel or the prosecuting attorney are not binding on the judge. I also know that any opinions they express to me as to what they believe the court may do are also not binding on the court.

14. No threats, coercion, or unlawful influence of any kind have been made to induce me to plead guilty, and no promises except those contained herein have been made to me.

15. I have read this statement or I have had it read to me by my attorney, and I understand its provisions. I know that I am free to change or delete anything contained in this statement. I do not wish to make any changes because all of the statements are correct.

16. I am satisfied with the advice and assistance of my attorney.

17. I am 43 years of age; I have attended high school and I can read and understand the English language or an interpreter has been provided to me. I was not under the influence of any drugs, medication or intoxicants which would impair my judgment when the decision was made to enter the plea. I am not presently under the influence of any drug, medication or intoxicants which impair my judgment.

18. I believe myself to be of sound and discerning mind, mentally capable of understanding the proceedings and the consequences of my plea and free of any mental disease, defect or impairment that would prevent me from knowingly, intelligently and voluntarily entering my plea.

I certify that I am the attorney for Dennis Streeter, the defendant above, and that I know he has read the statement or that I have read it to him and I have discussed it with him and believe he fully understands the meaning of its contents and is mentally and physically competent. CERTIFICATE OF PROSECUTING ATTORNEY

I certify that I am the attorney for the State of Utah in the case against Dennis Streeter, defendant. I have reviewed this statement of the defendant and find that the declaration, including the elements of the offense of the charge and the factual synopsis of the defendant's criminal conduct which constitutes the offense are true and correct. No improper inducements, threats or coercion to encourage a plea have been offered defendant. The plea negotiations are fully contained in the statement and in the attached plea agreement or as supplemented on record before the court. There is reasonable cause to believe that the evidence would support the conviction of defendant for the offense for which the plea is entered and acceptance of the plea would serve the public interest.

Sec. 5. [Municipal corporations — To be created by general law — Right and manner of adopting charter for own government — Powers included.]

Corporations for municipal purposes shall not be created by special laws. The legislature by general laws shall provide for the incorporation, organization and classification of cities and towns in proportion to population, which laws may be altered, amended or repealed. Any incorporated city or town may frame and adopt a charter for its own government in the following manner:

The legislative authority of the city may, by two-thirds vote of its members, and upon petition of qualified electors to the number of fifteen per cent of all votes cast at the next preceding election for the office of the mayor, shall forthwith provide by ordinance for the submission to the electors of the question: "Shall a commission be chosen to frame a charter?" The ordinance shall require that the question be submitted to the electors at the next regular municipal election. The ballot containing such question shall also contain the names of candidates for members of the proposed commission, but without party designation. Such candidates shall be nominated in the same manner as required by law for nomination of city officers. If a majority of the electors voting on the question of choosing a commission shall vote in the affirmative, then the fifteen candidates receiving a majority of the votes cast at such election, shall constitute the charter commission, and shall proceed to frame a charter.

Any charter so framed shall be submitted to the qualified electors of the city at an election to be held at a time to be determined by the charter commission, which shall be not less than sixty days subsequent to its completion and distribution among the electors and not more than one year from such date. Alternative provisions may also be submitted to be voted upon separately. The commission shall make provisions for the distribution of copies of the proposed charter and of any alternative provisions to the qualified electors of the city, not less than sixty days before the election at which it is voted upon. Such proposed charter and such alternative provisions as are approved by a majority of the electors voting thereon, shall become an organic law of such city at such time as may be fixed therein, and shall supersede any existing charter and all laws affecting the organization and government of such city which are now in conflict therewith. Within thirty days after its approval a copy of such charter as adopted, certified by the mayor and city recorder and authenticated by the seal of such city, shall be made in duplicate and deposited, one in the office of the secretary of State and the other in the office of the city recorder, and thereafter all courts shall take judicial notice of such charter.

Amendments to any such charter may be framed and submitted by a charter commission in the same manner as provided for making of charters, or may be proposed by the legislative authority of the city upon a two-thirds vote thereof, or by petition of qualified electors to a number equal to fifteen per cent of the total votes cast for mayor on the next preceding election, and any such amendment may be submitted at the next regular municipal election, and having been approved by the majority of the electors voting thereon, shall become part of the charter at the time fixed in such amendment and shall be certified and filed as provided in case of charters.

Each city forming its charter under this section shall have, and is hereby granted, the authority to exercise all powers relating to municipal affairs, and to adopt and enforce within its limits, local police, sanitary and similar regulations not in conflict with the general law, and no enumeration of powers in this constitution or any law shall be deemed to limit or restrict the general grant of authority hereby conferred; but this grant of authority shall not include the power to regulate public utilities, not municipally owned, if any such regulation of public utilities is provided for by general law, nor be deemed to limit or restrict the power of the legislature in matters relating to State affairs, to enact general laws applicable alike to all cities of the State.

The power to be conferred upon the cities by this section shall include the following:

(a) To levy, assess and collect taxes and borrow money, within the limits prescribed by general law, and to levy and collect special assessments for benefits conferred.

(b) To furnish all local public services, to purchase, hire, construct, own, maintain and operate, or lease, public utilities local in extent and use; to acquire by condemnation, or otherwise, within or without the corporate limits, property necessary for any such purposes, subject to restrictions imposed by general law for the protection of other communities; and to grant local public utility franchises and within its powers regulate the exercise thereof.

(c) To make local public improvements and to acquire by condemnation, or otherwise, property within its corporate limits necessary for such improvements; and also to acquire an excess over than [that] needed for any such improvement and to sell or lease such excess property with restrictions, in order to protect and preserve the improvement.

(d) To issue and sell bonds on the security of any such excess property, or of any public utility owned by the city, or of the revenues thereof, or both, including, in the case of public utility, a franchise stating the terms upon which, in case of foreclosure, the purchaser may operate such utility.
