

Rex E. Lee

SOLICITORS GENERAL CONFERENCE

The two-day conference consisted of seven panel sessions, each discussing issues of a specific presidency—pre-Reagan, Reagan, Bush, and Clinton. Session leaders directed discussion among panel members and also asked for questions from the audience.

Waxman, solicitor general from 1997 to 2001, explained that the responsibility of the office of the solicitor general is to represent the United States in the Supreme Court. The solicitor general decides when the United States should appeal cases it has lost in the lower federal and state courts, or when the United States should intervene to defend the constitutionality of an act of Congress. The office ensures that the United States speaks with one voice in court. Days, solicitor general from 1993 to 1996, defined his role as solicitor general by saying, “My responsibility was to continue continuity in the law.”

Olson, current solicitor general and keynote speaker at the September 12 banquet, said regarding Lee, “I soon came to marvel at Rex’s extraordinary combination of legal talent and human goodness.”

Rex E. Lee served as solicitor general of the United States from 1981 to 1985. During his term he argued 30 cases before the Supreme Court, winning 23. Over the course of his career, Lee argued 59 cases before the high court.

TWO YEARS AGO Thomas B. Griffith, assistant to the president and general counsel for Brigham Young University, had an idea: a conference to honor Rex E. Lee, an event that would link the public mind with Lee and BYU.

This year the Rex E. Lee Conference on the Office of Solicitor General of the United States became an historic occasion for the university and legal community. During September 12–13, 2002, five of the seven living solicitors general along with former deputies and assistant solicitors general met together at BYU to remember Rex E. Lee and to discuss the uniqueness of their office. Among those in attendance were the Honorable Theodore B. Olson, Seth P. Waxman, Drew S. Days III, Kenneth W. Starr, and Charles Fried.

“The people gathered here have been involved in the most significant landmark decisions in the last 30 years of our nation’s history,” Griffith said. “It’s very satisfying to see the clout of such prominent legal minds on campus.”

JUSTICE

Sandra Day O'Connor

VISITS BYU

DURING HER VISIT to Brigham Young University on September 26, 2002, U.S. Supreme Court Justice Sandra Day O'Connor shared her insights on the importance of values, work, and a desire to do good.

Justice O'Connor's day began with a visit to the J. Reuben Clark Law School, where she gave law students an overview of the Supreme Court's caseload, the process of granting certiorari, and Supreme Court written and oral advocacy.

In response to a question about balancing a legal career with other aspects of life, the Justice emphasized that students should find a law firm that encourages community involvement. She described the volunteer work she performed during the five-year sabbatical taken after the birth of her second child. During that time, Justice O'Connor participated in several community assignments such as being a juvenile court referee, serving on the county planning and zoning commission, being involved in the local chapter of Junior League, and working with the Heard Museum in Phoenix.

Further, Justice O'Connor encouraged community service during all stages of life. She explained that as a newly appointed Supreme Court Justice, she thought she would have no time for volunteer work. However, she found great fulfillment in accepting Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr.'s invitation to sit on the board of the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation.

Later during her visit, Justice O'Connor spoke at a university forum for all BYU students and faculty. Her message began with a collection of lessons she learned growing up on the Lazy B Ranch near the Arizona–New Mexico border. She emphasized the hard-work ethic she gained by learning to do “whatever was required to keep the ranch system in good working order,” as well as the values of honesty, dependability, competence, and good humor.

—Melanie Reed and Jason Jardine

MORE THAN 70 government leaders, scholars, and other participants from 39 countries attended the Ninth Annual International Law and Religion Symposium, held October 6–9, 2002, at the J. Reuben Clark Law School. The largest annual international conference dedicated to international religious liberty issues, the event is the most extensive project undertaken by the BYU International Center for Law and Religion Studies.

Over the past decade, through the work of Professor W. Cole Durham Jr. and other faculty members, BYU has emerged as a recognized leader in the field of religious rights, both at the national and international levels. The conference has been built on the extensive efforts and contacts of law school faculty to create a forum for the discussion of religious rights and a broader array of issues at the intersection of law and religion.

Conference participants come from a vast range of countries and religious traditions. This year the conference included delegates from countries including Albania, Brazil, Cambodia, Ethiopia, France, India, Mongolia, Pakistan, Russia, Turkey, and Vietnam. Al-Haaj Ghazi Y. Khankan, executive director of the Council on American Islamic Relations, expressed his amazement, stating, "I can't believe the scope of the conference you have here. It adds so much depth and diversity to the discussion [to have so many] delegates from so many countries."

This year's opening session began with addresses by Professor Jacques Robert, retired justice of the Constitutional Council of France and vice president of the European Commission for Democracy Through Law, along with Dean Michael K. Young, vice chair of the United States Commission on International Religious Freedom and dean of the George Washington Law School. Professor Robert addressed the need to respect religious difference and uphold the basic right of freedom of conscience. Following his remarks, he commented, "I find it extremely enlightening and refreshing to come here, where people talk about religion and tolerance confidently, openly, and comfortably with each other."

—Kimberly A. Mantz, Class of 2000

Law

AND Religion

SYMPOSIUM

Carolyn Stewart Retires

A history of the J. Reuben Clark Law School would not be complete without a chapter on Carolyn Stewart's contributions. Thirty years ago when the newly established Law School opened its doors for its first class of eager, young law students, Carolyn Stewart was there.

Carolyn had been hired by Rex E. Lee soon after his appointment as dean of the yet-to-be-opened Law School at BYU. She came with eight years of experience serving as secretary to the dean at the University of Utah's College of Law. Soon a key figure at the new BYU Law School, she eventually served four of its deans: Rex Lee, Carl Hawkins, Bruce Hafen, and H. Reese Hansen.

Not only did her duties involve managing administrative details of the Law School—the operating budget, staffing and faculty employment, and building scheduling; she also oversaw student advisement, registration, records, and certification for graduation and bar exams.

As she steps into retirement from the Law School three decades and 4,000 graduates later, Carolyn can know that she is revered by the entire law school community. It is the end of an epoch.

Lisa Cope in the Spotlight

Upon Carolyn Stewart's retirement, Dean H. Reese Hansen appointed Lisa Cope as his administrative assistant. Though Lisa is new to Carolyn's duties, she is not new to the Law School. Her work as fourth-floor secretary "broke her into" the Law School community in 1993. Four years later she became Dean Hansen's secretary. As administrative assistant she retains many of her duties as the dean's secretary, including final exam scheduling, security, proctoring, and Soft Test. In addition, she assumes most of Carolyn's responsibilities: including human resources, hiring, and personnel; Law School Class Schedule and book ordering; donor correspondence; and special events planning, such as the board of visitors.

Lisa's more than nine years of service to the Law School are her principal preparation for her new duties, though her past experience and education neatly dovetail into her current responsibilities. She worked for six years as a customer service representative at Zions Bank, followed by a stint as Marie Osmond's secretary. During this period she obtained and developed her computer and customer relations skills. About her computer skills she says, "I like to figure out how they can work to make my job more efficient." She learns each new upgrade thoroughly.

Lisa's time at BYU has also been a time to obtain additional work-related education. Her studies led to desktop publishing, and though she is giving up some of her duties with the Clark Memorandum and the online newsletter, she suspects that plenty of publishing opportunities will remain.

Whatever she does, she hopes she can keep out of the spotlight. The best way to achieve a degree of anonymity, she feels, is to plan so carefully that events and activities appear seamless. Lisa has exhibited this skill over and over during the past nine years. She concludes, "I can't replace Carolyn, but I take comfort in the fact that Carolyn hired and trained me." That gives her confidence in her ability to succeed "without too many bumps along the way."

Lisa and her husband, Vernon, are the parents of a blended family of four children.

Anita Montañó—A New Global Focus for Admissions

Anita Montañó, '02, is the new director of admissions at the Law School. During law school, she never considered that she might accept a job at the school. However, when the admissions position became available upon Lola Wilcock's retirement last fall, Anita couldn't get the job out of her mind. It seemed more a calling than a mere job. Anita faces her new position and duties with optimism and with innovative—even daring—plans for enhancing the job.

Her immediate goal is to build upon the Law School's present success by attracting and admitting to the school men and women with high aptitude and strong qualifications for the study of law. To facilitate this she plans to use the Law School's Web site to make online application easier. She wants to communicate the school's excellent reputation to students who might not otherwise consider BYU. She also hopes to encourage more international participation. Anita's ultimate goal is to help the Law School fulfill the Church's objectives during the school's second 30 years. As she commits to help shoulder the work through her own service and Christian ideals, she hopes that future law graduates will share this dedication to the Law School.

Previously, Anita worked for BYU Men's Intercollegiate Athletics while completing her undergraduate degree. After graduation she participated in BYU Travel Study. In fact, traveling has become her favorite pastime, and she now considers Italy her second home. Some people work to live; Anita admits she works to travel. One place near the top of her list of places to visit is Peru, her father's country of birth.

Law Society Leadership Training brought friends and former classmates together at Aspen Grove on September 5 and 6, 2002.

THE LAW SCHOOL
—
ALUMNI AND
—
FRIENDS WEEKEND
—
OCTOBER 17–19, 2002

LAW SOCIETY CHAPTERS SELECT HONOREES FOR 2002

The following J. Reuben Clark Law Society members have been recognized by their chapters for outstanding contributions to their profession and their communities.

Christopher P. Bisgaard Los Angeles Chapter

Christopher Bisgaard is a founder and former managing partner of Lewis, Brisbois, Bisgaard & Smith, a 380-lawyer firm with offices throughout California and New York. One of the outstanding environmental litigators in the state, Bisgaard has been involved as lead trial counsel in some of the most significant toxic tort and environmental matters in southern California in the last two decades. He has represented the City of Los Angeles, Orange County, Stanford University, and other parties, both plaintiff and defendant, in cost recovery and toxic tort cases.

Bisgaard has been active in bar and community service. Among other duties, he currently serves on the LA County Bar Association Judicial Evaluation Committee and has been president of the board of trustees of Flintridge Preparatory School, where his children were students.

A graduate of the University of Southern California, Bisgaard earned his law degree at UCLA Law School (1972), where he was an editor of the UCLA Law Review.

Richard K. Circuit San Diego Chapter

The first president of the San Diego BYU Cougar Club, Circuit helped establish the BYU sideband radio network, which brought BYU football games to fans outside Utah and eventually led to BYU football on satellite television and ESPN Gameplan.

As a member of the board of the Americans for Nonsmokers Rights Foundation, Circuit presented a brief before the San Diego Stadium Authority that led to a ban on smoking in San Diego's Qualcomm Stadium as well as the John Huntsman Arena in Salt Lake City. He has also served on the boards of such organizations as the Southern California Arthritis Foundation, the Greater San Diego Sports Association, and the San Diego Holiday Bowl. In addition, Circuit has been vice chair of the Torrey Pines Council of the Boy Scouts of America and has coached baseball in the La Jolla Youth Baseball Association.

A graduate of BYU (1967), Circuit earned a law degree at the University of Utah (1970) and a master of law degree in taxation from New York University (1971).

Gordon G. Conger Seattle Chapter

Gordon Conger retired following a legal career at Preston, Gates & Ellis. Toward the end of his career, he served for a few years as vice president and editorial director of KIRO-TV and Radio, appearing as the television station's commentator on the evening news. A graduate of BYU (1959), he earned his juris doctorate at the University of Washington.

Currently president of the Seattle Temple, he has filled Church callings ranging from Scoutmaster to Area Authority Seventy. After being released as an Area Authority Seventy, by assignment from the Area Presidency, Elder Conger led the charge on behalf of the Seattle-area churches against King County executive Ron Sims' order that church buildings in outlying areas could be no larger than 10,000 square feet. Elder Conger was able to bring together a coalition of religious leaders from Catholic and Protestant denominations to successfully defeat the order by vote of the King County Council. In doing so he created significant goodwill among those church leaders.

Ronald N. Inouye New York Chapter

A grandson of Japanese immigrants, Ronald Inouye decided after serving a Church mission to Japan and South Korea that he wanted to pursue a profession that would enable him to keep in touch with his ancestral country. Consequently, he built a corporate law career representing Japanese and Japanese-related companies and individuals.

After earning BA (1965) and MA (1971) degrees from BYU, Inouye received a law degree from George Washington University School of Law (1970). He was then hired in New York City by Whitman & Ransom's senior partner, who had developed a substantial practice involving Japanese clients. Inouye focused on the interests of this clientele and in 1978 was elected a partner of the firm (now the New York office of the Chicago-based law firm Winston & Strawn).

When Whitman & Ransom moved its offices to Park Avenue, Inouye and a partner decided to found their own law firm, Inouye & Ogden, opening its doors just down the street in April 1986. He continues to practice with the firm, centering on Japanese clients.

Brett London, '79
Orange County Chapter

Brett London currently sits as a judge on the Orange County Superior Court, Harbor District, where he has presided over numerous complex civil, felony criminal, and general civil trials since 1998. Prior to that, he sat on the West Orange County Municipal Court from 1989 to 1998 and then served as supervising judge of the West Justice Center. He holds an English degree from Cal State University, Fullerton, and a juris doctor degree from BYU.

Judge London began his professional career in Orange County with the Orange County District Attorney's office, where he was a deputy district attorney for 10 years. His teaching experience includes his position as adjunct professor of law at both Western State University College of Law and Chapman University School of Law, and as an associate professor of law at the Southern California School of Law.

Recipient of the J. Reuben Clark Outstanding Lawyer Award and the Award for Exemplary Service for 2002, Judge London has published a book entitled Religion and the Law: Cases and Materials.

Ralph W. Mabey
Salt Lake City Chapter

The founding chair of the Law Society's largest chapter, Ralph Mabey served as international chair of the Law Society from 1997 to 1999. Mabey is managing partner of the Salt Lake City Office of LeBoeuf Lamb Greene & MacRae. Prior to joining LeBoeuf in 1983, he was a United States bankruptcy judge for the District of Utah.

Mabey is president of the American College of Bankruptcy. From 1987 to 1993 he served as an appointee of the chief justice of the United States to the U.S. Judicial Conference's advisory committee on bankruptcy rules. Currently a contributing author to Collier on Bankruptcy and to the Collier Bankruptcy Manual, he has also served as managing editor of the Norton Bankruptcy Law Adviser and on the editorial advisory board of the American Bankruptcy Law Journal.

A 1972 graduate of Columbia University Law School, he is currently a senior lecturer at the J. Reuben Clark Law School.

Bruce M. MacKay, '94
Washington, D.C., Chapter

During the summer of 2002, Bruce MacKay began a three-year appointment in the Office of the Prosecutor for the Special Court of Sierra Leone, currently serving as acting chief of operations. The Special Court of Sierra Leone was established in August 2000 by the United Nations and the government of Sierra Leone to investigate and prosecute war crimes committed in that country since 1996. MacKay supervises various functions of the Office of the Prosecutor, including logistics, witness protection, transportation, and budget. He also serves as a member of the Special Court's Senior Management Board.

MacKay holds a BA degree from the University of Maryland and a JD from BYU. He previously provided legal advice to the U.S. Department of Defense as counsel in the Defense Intelligence Agency. He also worked for the firm Ropers, Majeski, Kohn & Bentley in Redwood City, California, and as a foreign affairs specialist in the U.S. Army.

Dan G. McKinney
Inland Empire Chapter

Since he began his law career in 1981 with Reid & Hellyer, where he is currently managing partner, Dan McKinney has been active the provision of legal services to the poor. From 1982 to the present he has been a member of the Public Service Law Corporation, serving as president from 1997 to 2000.

In addition to giving pro bono service, McKinney has served actively on the Riverside Superior Court arbitration panel and the Fourth District Court of Appeal mediation panel. He is a founding member of the Riverside County Dispute Resolution Service.

McKinney graduated from George Mason University with degrees in chemistry and government and received a JD from McGeorge School of Law. He has been president of the local barristers association (1985) and of the Riverside County Bar Association (1994). He received an AV rating by Martindale-Hubbell and was recently admitted to the American Board of Trial Advocates (ABOTA).

Shawn Mitchell
Denver Chapter

An attorney in private practice in the Denver area, Shawn Mitchell was elected to House District 33 in the Colorado General Assembly in November 1998 and was reelected in 2002. Previously, he served as special counsel to the Colorado attorney general, where he was a legal policy advisor and one of the top aides to former Colorado Attorney General Gale Norton. In that post, Mitchell worked on significant constitutional litigation, including First Amendment litigation on issues of church and state.

As a senior fellow at the Independence Institute—a conservative and free-market think tank in Golden, Colorado—Mitchell writes and speaks often on legal and public policy issues. A former president of the Colorado Chapter of the Federalist Society, he also has served on the Denver Rocky Mountain News Board of Editorial Contributors.

Mitchell received a BS from Brigham Young University (1987) and graduated from law school at the University of California, Berkeley.

Boyd P. Mossman
Hawaii Chapter

Born and raised in Hawaii, Judge Boyd Mossman has resided on the Island of Maui for over 31 years. Recently retired after 15 years of service as Hawaii Circuit judge, he currently works with Alternative Dispute Resolution as a mediator and arbitrator. Last November Judge Mossman was elected as the Maui Trustee for the nine-member board of trustees of the Office of Hawaiian Affairs.

Judge Mossman graduated from the Kamehameha School for Boys in 1961 and has a BS degree from the United States Air Force Academy (1965) and a law degree from George Washington University School of Law (1971).

He continues to serve as president of the Kamehameha Schools Alumni Association (Maui), director of the Boy Scouts Council on Maui, and director of the Oluwalu Cultural Reserve. He is also vice chair of the board of directors of the Polynesian Cultural Center and first counselor in the Honolulu Hawaii Mission presidency.

Robert B. White
Edmonton Alberta Chapter

A trial and appellate lawyer, Robert B. White is head of the litigation group in the Edmonton office of Davis & Company. A member of the Alberta, Saskatchewan, and Northwest Bars, he was appointed Queen's Counsel in 1985. White has appeared in a number of high-profile cases, including a judicial inquiry into the failure of a major financial institution and the "Surreptitious Entry" Reference before the Alberta Court of Appeals and the Supreme Court of Canada. He is the author of several books, including A Lawyer's Guide to the Computer, The Art of Discovery, and The Art of Trial.

White received a bachelor of commerce degree (1968) and a bachelor of laws degree (1971) from the University of Alberta. He currently serves as an Area Authority Seventy in The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Dale A. Whitman
Kansas City Chapter

Dale A. Whitman, the James E. Campbell Professor of Law at the University of Missouri-Columbia, is recognized for his service to legal education.

During 2002 he served as president of the Association of American Law Schools, a non-profit association of 164 law schools dedicated to "the improvement of the legal profession through legal education." The AALS serves as the learned society for law teachers and is legal education's principal representative to the federal government and to other national higher education organizations and learned societies. Whitman received his BES degree from BYU (1963) and his LLB degree from Duke University (1966).

Whitman has taught at North Carolina, UCLA, BYU, Washington, and Missouri, where he served as dean from 1982 to 1988. A fellow of the American Bar Foundation and a member of the American Law Institute, he has written numerous law review articles and books in the area of real estate and property law.

J. D. Williams
Boise Idaho Chapter

J. D. Williams recently retired from a career in public service to accept a position as a vice president of governmental affairs for PeopleSoft Corporation, a worldwide accounting/payroll software provider. In 1989, after serving as deputy attorney general, prosecuting attorney, and mayor, Williams was appointed Idaho State auditor (state controller), serving until November 2002.

Williams studied business and agricultural economics at Utah State University before earning a bachelor's degree in political science (1966) and a master's degree in public administration (1967) at Brigham Young University. He received a juris doctorate from American University (1970).

He has held leadership positions in the National Association of State Auditors, Comptrollers and Treasurers (NASACT); the National Electronic Commerce Coordinating Council (NECCC); and the National Association of State Controllers (NASC). During Williams' tenure as state controller, his office received several national awards for best practices in electronic government and financial management.

Correction

The art credit for Pablo Picasso's Mandolin and Guitar on page 41 of the fall 2002 issue of the Clark Memorandum included the wording "Collection of the McNay Art Museum, Bequest of Marion Koogler McNay." The credit should have read "Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum, New York." We apologize for the error.

♦ ♦ ♦
In England last May to set up the London Chapter of the J. Reuben Clark

Law Society, Bill
Atkins, international chair of the Law Society, and Dean Reese
Hansen of the Law School thought the entrance to the London Law
Society a good place for a souvenir snapshot.

♦ ♦ ♦

class notes

E-MAIL YOUR PROFESSIONAL NEWS TO COPEL@LAWGATE.BYU.EDU

CLASS OF 1976

Jeff Boswell has been called as stake president of the Fresno California West Stake. He served as first counselor in the stake presidency for nine years.

CLASS OF 1977

Ralph L. Dewsnap (Salt Lake City), president of Dewsnap King & Olsen, was promoted to brigadier general in the Utah Air National Guard.

Brian H. Kelley was appointed as president, chief executive officer, and director of Professional Business Bank.

CLASS OF 1979

Brett London currently sits as a judge on the Orange County Superior Court, Harbor District, where he has presided over numerous civil, felony criminal, and general civil trials since 1998. He received the J. Reuben Clark Outstanding Lawyer Award and the Award for Exemplary Service for 2002.

Ryan Thomas is completing his first year as president of the College of Eastern Utah, after serving nine years as vice president for Utah Valley State College.

CLASS OF 1980

Jay S. Bybee was confirmed by the U.S. Senate on his nomination for a judgeship on the U.S. Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals on March 13, 2003.

CLASS OF 1981

Thomas G. Bennett (Salt Lake City) was named a partner of Ballard Spahr Andrews & Ingersoll LLP, where he works in the real estate development and resort law group.

CLASS OF 1982

Jordan Clements (Salt Lake City), managing partner of Peterson Capital, a private equity investment firm, has led the school-choice movement in Utah. He is the founder of Children First Utah and Education Excellence Utah.

Robin L. Riggs (Salt Lake City) was named president of Qwest Communications for Utah in October 2002.

Glade Ross is now operating a software business, Rossware Computing, in Shelton, WA.

Stephen E. Thompson (Naples, FL) was recently appointed as managing partner at the Florida offices of Roetzel & Andress.

CLASS OF 1984

Bryan B. Todd (Salt Lake City) was named a shareholder of Parsons, Behle & Latimer, where he works in the firm's real estate and finance department.

CLASS OF 1985

Kurt C. Swainston joined Dechert's Newport Beach, CA, office as a partner, working in the firm's tax practice.

CLASS OF 1986

Sterling Brennan was named managing partner of Morrison & Foerster's Irvine, CA, office. He handles a variety of business litigation matters involving real estate, contracts, and intellectual property rights.

Jeff Clark was recently named general counsel of RGS Energy and called to serve as bishop of the Pittsford Ward of the Palmyra New York Stake.

Barbara Christensen Marshall (Phoenix, AZ) is the division chief of the Juvenile Crimes Division of the Maricopa County Attorney's Office.

Kirtlan G. Naylor (Boise, ID), partner in the law firm of Naylor Hales & McCreedy, PC, is serving as a counselor in his stake presidency. He is also chair of the Governor's Task Force on Children at Risk and has volunteered for guardians ad litem in child protection cases.

John Quinlan set up his own real estate development company that owns apartment complexes in Houston and office buildings in Arizona. He is currently serving as Young Men president in Sugar Land First Ward near Houston, TX.

Jeffrey A. Siebach is international counsel for Intel Corporation. He relocated from Hong Kong to California in 2000, after spending 13 years in Hong Kong.

Kevin Stolworthy (Las Vegas, NV) was recently called to serve as a bishop. He is a shareholder at Jones Vargase.

Carolyn White (Arlington, VA) is serving as Restoration Branch chief for the judge advocate side of the Air Force, where she is the primary attorney for property cleanup issues at operating Air Force facilities.

Timothy Zinnecker (Houston, TX) was granted tenure and promoted to full professor by the board of directors of South Texas College of Law. He joined the faculty in 1994 and teaches banking law, bankruptcy, secured transactions, and payment systems.

CLASS OF 1987

Rob Johnson (Payson, UT) was recently appointed chief executive officer of Young Living Essential Oils.

Tadiana W. Jones (Salt Lake City) was named a shareholder with Durham Jones & Pinegar, PC, in January 2002. Her practice focuses on software licensing and intellectual property transactions.

Brad Wright (Grand Junction, CO) left private practice in 1998 to join Wastren, Inc., where in March 2002 he became chief executive officer. The firm provides facility management, environmental, and other specialty services to the federal government. He and his wife, Sheri, have five children.

CLASS OF 1989

Jini Roby, an instructor of social work law and policy at the School of Social Work at BYU, has received the 2002–2004 John A. Widstoe Fellowship to help establish a central adoption authority in the Republic of Marshall Islands.

CLASS OF 1990

Brett L. Foster (Salt Lake City) was named a partner in the law firm of Holland & Hart LLP.

CLASS OF 1992

David Berndt (Providence, RI) was appointed director of the Mobile Solutions Group at Watch Hill Partners, Inc., a strategic technology and business process consultancy.

Kevin B. Laurence joined the law firm of Stoel Rives LLP as a principal in the firm's intellectual property group.

Lohra Miller is the Taylorsville City prosecutor at Miller & Miller Law Offices. She has also served on the West Jordan Planning Commission.

Grant M. Sumsion joined the Provo office of Ray Quinney & Nebeker, where his practice includes employment law and litigation.

CLASS OF 1993

Aimee Alfonso is human resources manager for Hartwell-Dzus, Placentia, CA.

David R. Williams (Salt Lake City) is partner at Woodbury Kesler. The father of five children, he serves as second counselor in the bishopric.

CLASS OF 1994

Essie Fischer (Corona, CA) has been teaching language arts at Wells Intermediate School in CA for three years, after practicing law for about four years. She is coordinator of the school's Gifted and Talented Education Program, and earlier in 2002 she helped the Alvord Unified School District revise its language arts curriculum to match state standards.

Evan Nelson (San Francisco, CA) joined Carroll Burdick & McDonough LLP, specializing in product liability, intellectual property, toxic torts, and commercial litigation.

CLASS OF 1995

David W. Tufts (Salt Lake City) was named a shareholder with Durham Jones & Pinegar in January 2002. He continues his practice in the area of civil litigation.

CLASS OF 1996

Jeanne Campbell is a solo practitioner specializing in criminal defense. She has also established her own title and escrow company.

Paul Johnson (San Diego, CA) is a senior associate at Gray Cary Ware & Freidenrich LLP, where he practices in the corporate and securities area.

Jared Leung (Phoenix, AZ) is practicing business immigration law with Little Mendelson PC. He is the proud father of two children, Joseph and Janelle, and in his spare time he participates as the assistant coach of Joseph's soccer team.

James E. Merrell (Salt Lake City) joined the law firm of Callister Nebeker & McCullough as an associate. His practice focuses on real estate and commercial loan transactions.

Larry J. Webster (Cedar Park, TX) formed his own firm, Webster & Associates, work-

Life in the Law: Answering God's Interrogatories

Filled with selections from the Clark Memorandum, this book contains the writings of men and women who have examined what matters most in their professional and private lives.

ORDER NOW!

NAME _____

E-MAIL ADDRESS _____

QUANTITY OF BOOKS @ $20 EACH =

TOTAL

PAYMENT TYPE

☐ CHECK MADE PAYABLE TO J. REUBEN CLARK LAW SCHOOL ☐ CREDIT CARD

PLEASE CHARGE MY ☐ VISA ☐ MASTERCARD ☐ AMERICAN EXPRESS ☐ DISCOVER

CARD NUMBER _____

EXPIRATION DATE _____ ZIP CODE _____

SIGNATURE _____

MAIL TO
BYU LAW SCHOOL
JEANETTE BEFUS
456 JRCB
PROVO, UT 84602

You may also order the book online at http://www.law2.byu.edu/Clark_Society/order_form/ Questions? Call (801) 422-3884 or e-mail JRCLS@lawgate.byu.edu ing with new small- to medium-sized technology companies.

Todd Weiler (Salt Lake City) was recently named a shareholder with Parry Anderson & Gardiner. He and his wife, Elizabeth, have three sons, with a fourth child due in March 2003. Todd is currently serving on the Woods Cross City Council, on the Board of Directors of the Davis County Chamber of Commerce, and as bishop of the Woods Cross Fourth Ward.

CLASS OF 1998

Pattie S. Christensen (Salt Lake City) left the law firm of Holme Roberts & Owen in October 2000 to start her own practice and to work as an executive in an Internet-based company.

K. Paul MacArthur was recently elected as officer and hired as legal counsel for a nonprofit public charity called "Help for Orphaned Children Abroad" in Provo. This organization builds orphanages in developing countries where children's aid is inadequate, and then seeks to place orphaned children for adoption in the United States.

His primary areas of practice are estate planning, business formation, nonprofit, taxation, and adoption.

M. Sean Sullivan (St. George, UT) joined the law firm of Jones Waldo Holbrook & McDonough, where his practice includes the areas of trusts, wills, business succession planning, probate, charitable giving, and tax law.

Dane H. Watkins (Idaho Falls, ID) became county prosecutor of Bonneville County in November 2001.

CLASS OF 1999

David M. Carter joined the law firm of Snell & Wilmer as an associate at its Salt Lake City office, where he focuses on business and finance law.

CLASS OF 2000

Reed R. Braithwaite joined the St. George office of Jones Waldo Holbrook & McDonough, focusing his practice on personal injury and defense, family law, and general litigation.

R. Chad Hales joined the Walnut Creek, CA, office of Morrison & Foerster LLP, where he works in litigation.

CLASS OF 2001

Angela Atkin (Salt Lake City) joined the law firm of Jones Waldo Holbrook & McDonough, focusing on taxation, estate planning, trust and probate, and general corporate law.

David A. Bargatze is working at Shaw Air Force Base in Sumter, SC, as chief of preventative law and legal assistance. He won the Curtis E. LeMay Award as the top graduate in his Officer Training School class.

Gabriel S. Clark (Salt Lake City) joined the law firm of Durham Jones & Pinegar, focusing on corporate and securities law and commercial litigation.

J. Colby Clark joined the law firm of Ballard Spahr Andrews & Ingersoll in the litigation department. His practice focuses on contract and business tort disputes, intellectual property disputes, and securities litigation.

Matthew C. Fleming (Salt Lake City) is a new associate at the law firm of Stoen Rives LLP.

Rachelle R. Fleming (Salt Lake City) is a new associate at the law firm of Stoen Rives LLP.

Chad J. Pomeroy (Salt Lake City) joined the firm Durham Jones & Pinegar, focusing on estate and business planning and corporate law.

CLASS OF 2002

Matthew D. Bullock (Albuquerque, NM) is a new associate at Modrall Sperling Roehl Harris & Sisk, PA, in the natural resources department.

Jed K. Burton (Salt Lake City) is a new associate at Parsons Behle & Latimer, where he practices real property law.

Ian Douglas (Phoenix, AZ) joined the law firm of Lewis & Roca LLP as an associate who practices bankruptcy law.

Ryan L. Marshall (Salt Lake City) is a new associate at Parsons Behle & Latimer, where he works in the corporate, tax, and technology department, focusing on intellectual property.